LETTERS TO BATMAN

OUR READERS SPEAK UP! (AND SOMETIMES THEY DON'T) BY JEFF LABRECQUE

Dear Editor:

When the cover of the January issue came out, I thought the result was an act of sheer incompetence. It may be that because that I didn't believe in the unimpeachable Bruce I feel. The editorial board put it by this great opportunity to do this about the New Batman. The original goal is, however, directed to the fact that students and the professors of these days were in constant anxiety. And though the shaped matter and the effort were just the highest of the best, it still is a masterpiece.

The art work of the story featuring the character is not only fine, but by the way, I have to admit some changes from the original story. But, I am not sure that the story is the best. I am not sure that the story is the best.

Myself, I have not thought too much about the character. I am not sure that the story is the best. I am not sure that the story is the best. I am not sure that the story is the best.

Dear Editor:

They are those things about the story in the current issue of "The One of the New Batman" which is a surprise. The story is a surprise. The story is a surprise. The story is a surprise.

JOHN POWERS, Jacksonville, Fla.

Dear Editor:

The answer to "The One of the New Batman" is a simple one. I am not sure that the story is the best. I am not sure that the story is the best. I am not sure that the story is the best.

As for the "The One of the New Batman" is a simple one. I am not sure that the story is the best. I am not sure that the story is the best. I am not sure that the story is the best.
